TO DARKEN HAIR APPLY SAGE TEA. LOOK YOUNG! BRING BACK ITS NATURAL COLOR GLOSS AND THICKNESS.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant; remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the sage tea and sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

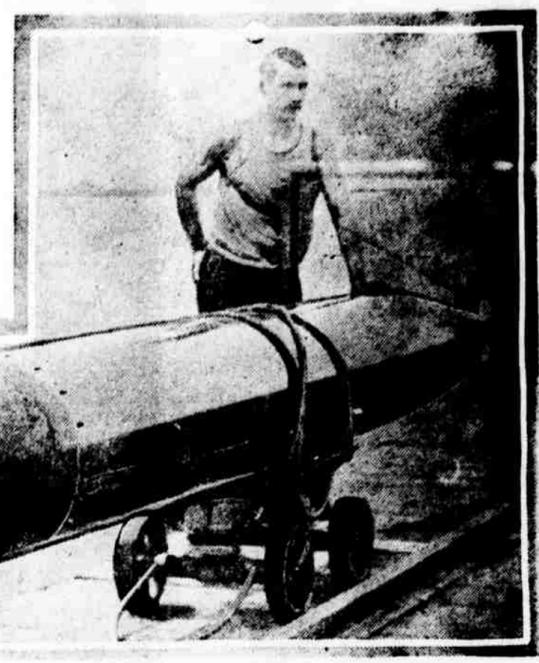

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application of two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant, and you appear years younger. (Paid Advertisement)

Torpedo of E-1 Could Sink Any Battleship Now Afloat

This photograph of a torpedo used by the American submarine E-1, now in New York harbor with the warships, making the greatest naval display in the history of the country, shows to some extent the American preparation for war. The photograph was taken with the camera of the submarine sailor who is shown beside the torpedo. It is powerful enough to sink any man of war afloat. The E-1 was the one which made the wonderful trip of 1,250 miles from Key West to New York. It is doubtful if any submarine so far used in the war in Europe has gone so far outside without aid.

Former Local Girl Is Playwright; Plays Here

The following from the Roseburg Review will be of great interest to Klamath Falls people: After a month of drumming chords and rounding out simple airs, catchy songs from melodies caught on the inspiration and set to swinging rhymes and choruses, Roseburg's first musical comedy has been written. It bears the title "Love's Game," and a copy is now on the way to be copyrighted at Washington, D. C. The writer and composer is Miss Mildred Wilson and she has just surprised her friends with the announcement. It is also stated that she intends to produce it and may tour the coast. Miss Wilson is the daughter of H. G. Wilson, head of the Indian agency located in this city, and her effort is doubtless the first ever made by a local person in this particular field, and not only is this the first attempt to be made by her, but a number of persons who have acquaintance with musical comedies declare that it undoubtedly is a distinct success. Short stories, poems, and even books and some music have been written by local people, but it has generally been conceded that the musical comedy required an atmosphere of the large city, of bright lights and gay throngs. Miss Wilson's success, however, proves that the quieter surroundings are just as conducive to composition as the livelier places. Miss Wilson, in addition to being a talented and accomplished young lady, is especially fond of athletics, and one of her favorite pastimes is playing tennis. Consequently it is only natural that the songs and comedy of her play should center about an episode on a tennis court. Tennis forms the ground work of the theme, the cast are members of a tennis club, and the climax comes when the natural figure defeats a rival in the annual club tournament. One of the most interesting situations occurs when the champion player meets the girl, who had been elected queen of the May Day festivities of the club and is asked to try and defeat a certain presumably conceited player on the courts in the tournament. He therefore agrees to beat himself and the surprise of the girl later is deemed comical. She then hopes he may win the event of the day. The third act closes the play when a dance is given in the club house in the evening and the romance terminates most happily. There is a lot of comedy between a pair of comedians who are just learning the game. The songs, however, are the most important part of the play, in all 11 musical numbers constituting the score. The "Tennis Lesson," and "Honeysuckle" choruses are scenes in which the participants dance and illustrate uniquely the words of the songs. On account of the enthusiasm over the work by the friends of Miss Wilson, she has decided to give the play an actual trial. Accordingly she has made copies and planned the details of the settings and stage effects. She is now in Portland contracting with parties for such scenery and properties as she will need to give an up-to-date performance. If arrangements are satisfactory she will have the play published upon her return and begin making contracts with organizations or societies in various towns in this state and California for producing it with local talent. It is Miss Wilson's present intention to have the play staged first in Klamath Falls, where she is very well known, afterwards putting it on in Roseburg.
